Let's empty Ford Field on Sunday

Things I'd like to see in sports (final edition):

- Ford Field half empty at kickoff on Sunday afternoon for the Detroit Lions game.
- Girls high school basketball in Michigan to remain a fall sport.
- The Tigers make it back to the World Series.
- Rick Leach in the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame.
- The Lions lower ticket prices next season.
- Tommy Amaker take his team to the NCAA tournament this season.
- The Red Wings make it to the Stanley Cup finals in June.
- NBA players who get into brawls write letters of apology to all their adoring 10-year-old fans, asking for forgiveness.
- Two high schools in Flint, just two.
- Atwood Stadium filled for any game.
- Tom Herzog gain 30 pounds.
- A football playoff for NCAA Division I, limited to eight or four teams.
- Mark Dantonio put a little fire and integrity into Michigan State football.
- The Pistons vs. the Bulls in the NBA Eastern Conference finals.
- Jack Pratt have a happy, healthy retirement.
- Heaters in all those high school football press boxes.
- Tigers manager Jim Leyland give up smoking.
- Somebody spit in Terrell Owens' face, see how he likes it.

- More high school basketball doubleheaders.
- High school baseball in Flint get back on track.
- World Series games, at least one or two, in the afternoon.
- Less football bowl games. Do we really need 32 of those?
- Fans who rip referees should immediately become replacements.
- Antonio Smith make an impact on Michigan State basketball again.
- UM-Flint to have sports ... let's start with basketball, soccer and swimming.
- Peyton Manning play in a Super Bowl.
- The Lions trade their No. 1 pick for two or three first-rounders.
- The Dirrell brothers strike it rich on HBO boxing.
- Any which way to solve those traffic jams in and out of Michigan Stadium on autumn afternoons.
- Deanna Nolan win another WNBA Finals Most Valuable Player trophy.
- The Big Nine Conference change its name to Big Six Conference in 2007.
- More high school kids play three sports.
- Brandon Bell make an impact on UD-Mercy basketball.
- For all kids, more emphasis on having fun, less emphasis on winning.
- Two months of good snow for Mt. Holly.
- LaDainian Tomlinson traded to the Lions for Roy Williams, four draft picks and Matt Millen.
- Flint make a comeback in men's fastpitch.
- Central Michigan University win the Motor City Bowl.
- Dominik Hasek last the regular season in net for the Red Wings.
- All right, all right. Let's make Ford Field totally empty on Sunday afternoon.
