Learn

UDM offers the challenge, support and hands-on experience you need to pursue a lifetime of great things. That's why U.S. News & World Report ranked us in the top tier of Midwestern master's universities for the sixth year in a row. UDM has:

- 100 fields of study, many of them nationally recognized
- Co-op and internship opportunities in almost every field
- Distinguished faculty who know how the real world works
- A 13:1 student-faculty ratio and an average class size of 20
- An Academic Exploration Program that lets you try out different majors before committing to one

Live

Doing great things means doing a lot of things — like making friends, joining clubs, developing your athletic or artistic talents and participating in service projects. We offer:

- 16 men's and women's NCAA Division I teams that win on the field and are in the national top five academically
- Live bands, comedians and poets performing and reading at the Grounds Coffeehaus
- Fitness and recreation facilities open to all students
- A city full of cultural and professional opportunities
- More than 65 clubs and organizations
