

Morning briefing

October 12, 2007

Naperville man joins Warrenton company

Jon Harmon of Naperville joined Navistar International Corporation as vice president of corporate communications.

Harmon joined the Warrenton truck company having most recently worked at Force for Good Communications, a public relations consulting business he founded earlier this year. Harmon has 23 years experience at Ford Motor Company in public relations.

He holds a bachelor's degree in journalism from the University of Missouri and a master's degree in creative writing from the University of Detroit.

Woman promoted at financial business

Connie Cebula of Naperville was promoted to vice president of product management for Genworth Financial Advisers of Schaumburg.

She joined the company in 2004 as a marketing and communications leader, with responsibilities including the development of marketing materials and employee training programs.

She holds degrees from the University of Southern California.

Local accountant earns award for firm

Darlene Belter of Naperville received a lifetime achievement award from the Professional Association of Small Business Accountants.

She was recognized for her work with her firm, TaXXsolutions.

Belter, a member of the accountants' association for 21 years, has served on its board and as its president.

The award was given at the association's 2006 Spring Marketing Conference in Tucson, Ariz.