BGSU has new general counsel

BOWLING GREEN — Bowling Green State University has named a new general counsel.

Sean FitzGerald, associate vice president and associate general counsel for Wayne State University in Detroit, will join the university Oct. 13.

His salary will be $176,000.

Mr. FitzGerald has been a lawyer at Wayne State for more than 11 years, representing the institution in legal issues such as labor and employment, contract negotiations, open records, and student issues. He previously worked in private practice in Detroit representing government clients.

Mr. FitzGerald received his law degree from the school of law at the University of Detroit, now Detroit Mercy, and his bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan.

He replaces Thomas Trimboli, who left in the summer to accept the position of senior vice president for legal affairs and general counsel at the College of Charleston in South Carolina.
