Detroit law school reaches out to Atlanta veterans

The Atlanta Journal-Constitution
Wednesday, December 03, 2008

The University of Detroit's Mercy School of Law sent a mobile law office to Atlanta this week to help veterans with federal disability and pension benefit matters.

The law school's Project SALUTE set up shop on Tuesday at the Omega Holiness Church on Memorial Drive, and will be open from 10 a.m. to noon and from 2 to 4 p.m. Wednesday at Central Presbyterian Outreach and Advocacy Center on Washington Street to provide legal assistance for low-income veterans.

Volunteer attorneys and faculty and students from the law school have counseled more than 2,000 people during the past year through Project SALUTE. The school's mobile law office also made a stop in Atlanta in March.

"We received such an overwhelming response from Atlanta's veterans during our last visit that we felt it was necessary to return and provide further legal assistance to those still in need," said Mark Gordon, dean of the Mercy School of Law.
