There is just one blemish on the Cardinal Mooney girls basketball team's sparkling 17-1 record.

That came at the hands of Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes. The Cardinals can exact revenge at 1 p.m. today at the University of Detroit's Calihan Hall for the Detroit Catholic League C-D championship.

Cardinal Mooney, which has split with the Lakers this season, fell 44-43 Feb. 5.

The Cardinals said they have been waiting for this game.

"I think we are all looking forward to it because it was such a close game last time," senior guard Sammy Theut said. "We are all getting ready and are going to try and get them back."

Mooney Coach Susan Everhart said she thinks the loss will help the girls be more focused this time around.

"We have to execute a little better offensively this time," she said. "We also need to keep up our defensive intensity, which got us here."

Mooney, which lost in the Class D state semifinals last season, beat Lakes last year in the Catholic League finals.

The Cardinals have cruised through playoffs this season, knocking off Bloomfield Hills Sacred Heart 66-42 in the opening round and pounding Madison Heights Bishop Foley 63-39 in the semifinal.

Mooney had a close game with Auburn Hills Avondale Tuesday, winning 66-62.

"It was a great game to have coming into the finals," Everhart said. "We were down five with less than three minutes to go, and we made two really big defensive stops."

Those defensive stops also will be key today as the Cardinals will try to slow down Lakers' star Lauren Robak.

The Cardinals hope to take advantage of the larger floor at Calihan Hall.

"I think we can use it to our advantage," Everhart said. "We are good in transition, and we should be able to get out and run."
